A year for gaining knowledge, changing attitudes,
making decisions.

We have advanced along our chosen paths.

Take a look at where we've been and where we're going from the Crossroads of 1979.

We meet at a CROSSROADS.
 For a while we share the path,
 We watch the days turn cold then warm again,
 We join the stars at night.

We stand at this crossroads for but a moment.
We know the road will soon part and we must choose our separate ways.
It is a difficult decision:
the paths we take may shape the rest of our lives.
Which one will it be?

Where do we go from here?

OZARK ODYSSEY

Hillbillies, stills, hornets and lions all fit the MSSC 1978 Homecoming theme "Ozark Odyssey." The week of October 9-14 began with the erection of campus decorations, continued with an assembly to introduce Queen candidates, voting for Queen, a cookout and pep rally Friday, and the parade, Homecoming game and dance Saturday.

Other activities during Homecoming week included a rappelling and shooting clinic sponsored by the Military Science Department and Senior day.

The parade Saturday morning included seventeen area bands, fourteen floats, the twenty-three queen candidates, and four twirling groups. The Industrial Technology Club won first prize in the float competition with Sigma Nu second and Society for the Advancement of Management third.

Winner of the campus decoration contest was The Society for Advancement of Management, with The Industrial Technology Club second, and Koinonia third. The sweepstakes winner was The Industrial Technology Club.

This year the Queen was announced at the pep rally on Friday rather than during the football game in order that the Queen might reign for more than just a day. Homecoming Queen for 1978 was Cherrie Dickerman sponsored by South Hall.

The Lions surprised Emporia State as the Big Mean Green stung the Hornets 17-0 in the Homecoming game. While the defense held the Hornets to under two yards per carry, forced one fumble and picked off 4 interceptions, the Lion offense ran up a total of 324 yards.

Quarterback Bruce Hilton made the two touchdowns from four yards out and two yards out with Larry Lawyer adding the points after and a 46 yard field goal.

Homecoming week ended with the traditional dance with music provided by "Nickels."

Leon C. Billingsly

1925 - 1978

Dr. Leon C. Billingsly, the only person to serve as President of Missouri Southern State College, died suddenly of a heart attack on Saturday, November 25, 1978. He was 53.

For fourteen years he had served as president of the college which under his leadership had grown from a one building junior college to a four-year state college on a 300 acre campus. He was the right man at the right time for MSSC. Although he was only 39 years old when he assumed the presidency, his teaching and administrative experience coupled with his sound business acumen and solid common sense provided him with the tools to meet the challenges of building a college.

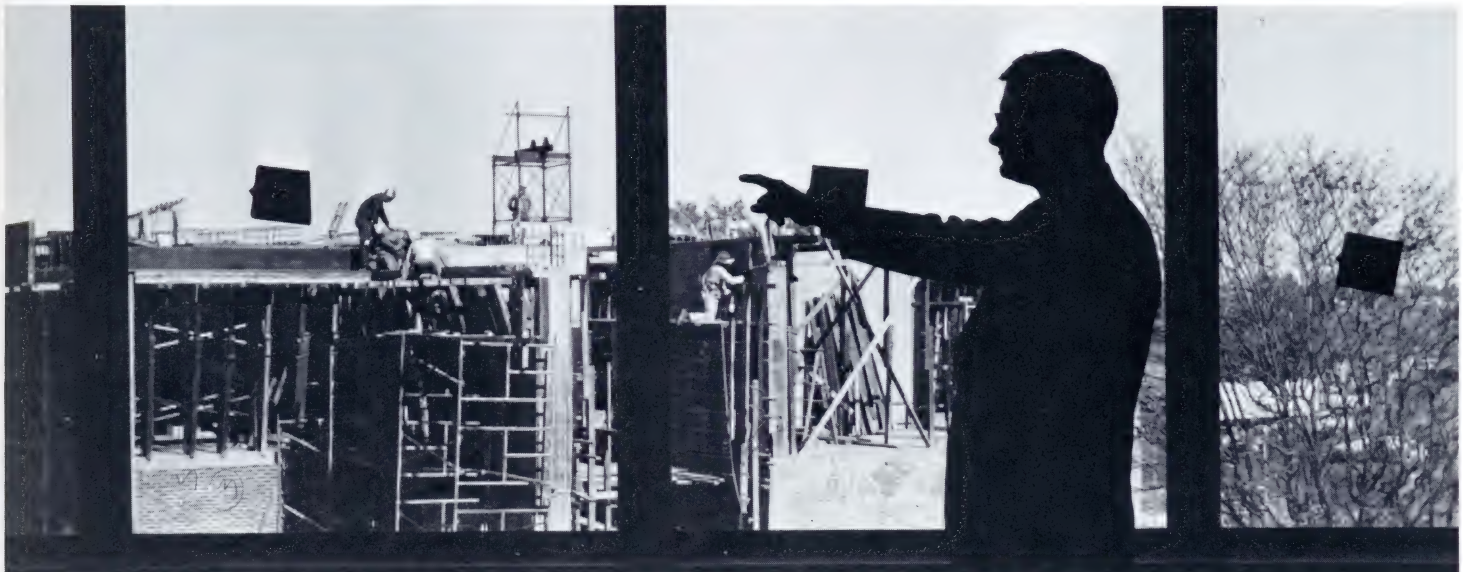

Dr. Billingsly had left home at 16 to join the Navy because "There was no employment for young people where I was. I lived south of Springfield on a farm and young people had to leave the community to find work." After traveling four years in the service, he began his college education at Southwest Missouri State University in Springfield. He had traveled to many countries during his Navy duty including Australia, India, Japan, Africa and the Phillippines. "I saw many good places to live," he had said, "but nothing that compared to the U.S. We're fortunate to live here. With all our faults, this is still the best place to live. We have a good system of public education, the privilege of voting for those who will govern us and of objecting to those officials who don't do their job right, our standard of living is higher—things which are common here are a luxury elsewhere."

Dr. Billingsly graduated from SMS with degrees in political science and biology and enough physical education to coach, which he did for two years at Golden City, Mo. While teaching there and at Lamar, he completed his Master of Science at Pittsburg State University, beginning his administrative career as Superintendent of Schools at Golden City. He then held the same position at Pleasant Hill, became Director of the Laboratory Schools at PSU, and after completing his Doctor of Education degree at the University of Arkansas, became Dean of the Joplin Junior College in 1961. In 1963 he became President of Kellogg College in Battle Creek Michigan for one year, returning to the presidency of MSSC (then Jasper County Junior College) in 1964.

For the next fourteen years, Dr. Billingsly dealt with the pressures, disappointments, challenges and triumphs of establishing MSSC as an outstanding four-year college. His abilities in dealing with legislators in Jefferson City, college administrators around the state, and civic and business leaders at home were in large measure responsible for the college's growth and success.

Dr. Billingsly had stated in an interview, "This job has a certain amount of pressure. There are times when you can't just leave it at the office. However, the benefits far outweigh the problems. I like it—no, I love it, or I wouldn't be here now."

Perhaps no other college or university administrator in the state was as respected in the Missouri legislature as Leon Billingsly. His thorough knowledge of the legislative process and his ability to work honestly and diplomatically with the government officials spelled success for the college in receiving continued legislative support for its growth.

Dr. Billingsly worked diligently with faculty, administration and Board of Regents/Trustees in developing a college curriculum which combines strong academic disciplines and advanced vocational and technical training. In providing studies that would aid employment in the Joplin area, he felt that the college was paying the city back for the tremendous support it had given the college. "We've tried to give the city something tangible in return for what they've done for us," he said.

His high academic standards and knowledge of curriculum development led to his appointment to the evaluation team of the North Central Accreditation Program. In 1977, SMSU honored him with an Outstanding Alumnus Award presented to him by President Duane Meyer, a long time friend and colleague. (pictured right) That same year he also received the Outstanding Citizen Award from the Joplin Chamber of Commerce, the first recipient of the award not primarily involved in commerce. His ability to establish rapport with people in all areas of the city's life helped create and maintain the enviable "town and gown" rapport which the community and the college enjoy.

On a campus of 4000 students, not many students can really know the president or even have opportunity to meet him personally. But Dr. Billingsly was always accessible to students, always willing to listen and help with their problems, to carefully explain circumstances with which they might not agree, or to share happily in their accomplishments.

We were all privileged to be, as a Joplin Globe editorial stated following his death, "... in the presence of a uncommon, common man ... He used the same measure of strength, magnetism and vigor in helping build college buildings as he did in helping to build character—as far as one can, as best as one can. No community or its people are left unmarked or uninspired when a Leon Billingsly passes by."

CROSSROADS 1979 is dedicated to Leon Billingsly who chose from many roads the one that led him here
“and that has made all the difference.”

The Missouri Southern State College music department provides a wide variety of activities for students and members of the faculty and community. The many organizations on campus are comprised of students who are both majors and non-majors in the field of music.

One of the most popular groups is the orchestra. This group is made up of members of the faculty as well as students and musicians from the surrounding area. The MSSC Orchestra concentrates on classical period music for their performances. The "Lion Pride" marching band is a very popular organization on the MSSC campus (top right). This organization, which practices an average of three or more hours a week during the fall semester, has more members than any other ensemble in the music department. The "Lion Pride" performs at all Lion football games, participates in homecoming activities, and the "pep" band performs at all Lion basketball games throughout the year.

During the Spring semester, the MSSC Concert Band organizes. This group practices for three hours a week as a group, and the individual members spend several hours with individual practices and sectional rehearsals. The Concert Choir is an organization which consists of about fifty members. The Concert Choir consists of both music majors and non-majors, and performs a wide variety of choral music.

A smaller, more select group than the Concert Choir is the Collegiates. Members of the Collegiates are usually music majors and are selected from Concert Choir members. This group is more diverse in their performance. They include traditional as well as popular music. In the instrumental department, a small, select group is the Brass Choir. This ensemble performs chamber music at concerts and recitals.

MUSIC MAKERS

The MSSC Lab Band is a smaller instrumental group than the Concert Band. This group performs music of the jazz idiom. The Lab Band performs at various school and civic events throughout the year.

All of the ensembles in the music department at MSSC serve as recruiting devices for the school as well as for the department itself. The Lab Band especially is active in this area. Each year, during the spring, the Lab Band tours various area high schools to perform for students and inform them as to what is available to them at Missouri Southern. This year, for the first time, the Concert Band also became active in this area by touring area high schools and participating in the annual band festival at Silver Dollar City in the spring.

BEFORE the SHOW GOES ON

by Raymond Lee
Senior Theatre major

Each year at MSSC a group of dedicated young men and women endeavor to expand both their knowledge and experience as theatre students. These students come from all areas of the country. To some theatre is a full-time major, to others it's a part-time activity that sublimates their regular course of study. But they all share a common goal; to produce the best in theatrical entertainment.

The theatre has been called the most complex of the arts, since it requires many creators. The various creative elements which go into the college's 4 main stage or 2 traveling children's shows are usually provided by the students. The visual background, for example is the work of student set, lighting and costume designers, who seek to interpret the qualities found in the script through visual means. Several months in advance of production, the student designers research the period in which the play is set, studying styles of clothing, architecture, furniture, and other elements to prepare designs that are historically accurate as well as theatrically effective.

Student actors embody the mood and spirit of a play by creating means of expression through body and voice, the role, and the stage environment. Student technicians work to achieve the application of the designers' creations into practical form. In like manner all those who are involved in the many aspects of production work to achieve a high degree of excellence characteristic of the Missouri Southern Theatre Department.

"The Theatre is the only art form that dies every night only to be reborn each day, for it exists whenever actors perform before an audience." —Oscar Brockett

by Terry Menard, Artist

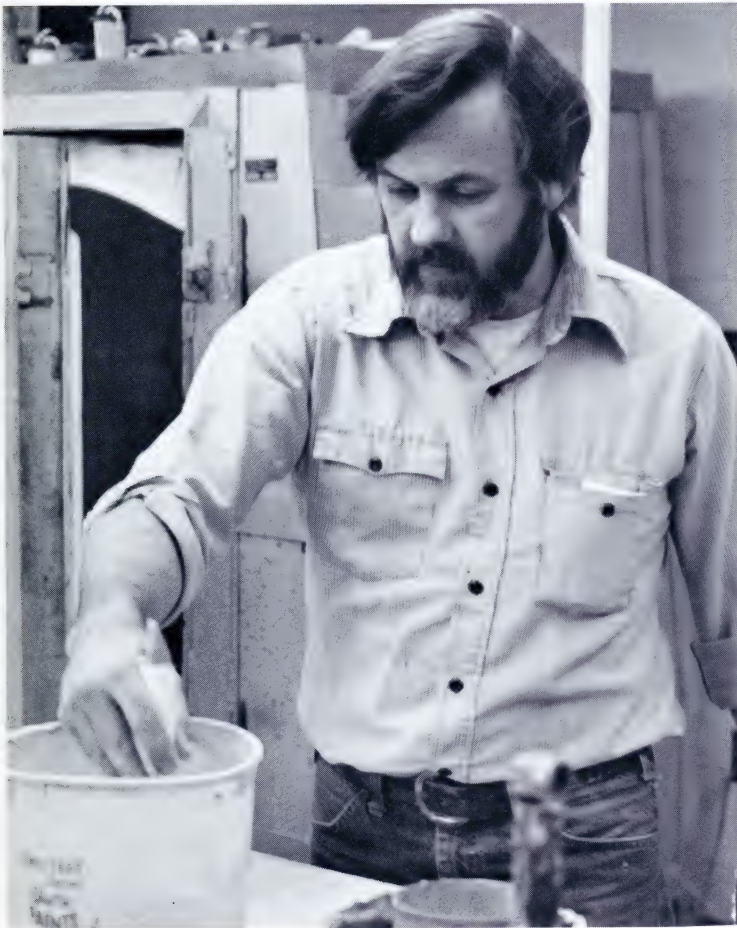

Art is an integral part of our lives. We create it, we destroy it. We do a lot with art, from the stamp on a letter, to this book. Artists help us see, adapt, and use ideas. Art is different for each person. For the senior art students art is their life. No longer are they considered senior art students, but are students of the arts, creators and explorers. They express our feelings and needs through their media. Our dreams become visible through artists' work, be it a comic strip, an invitation to graduation ceremony or a commercial advertisement.

It takes much self-discipline and hard work to create a piece of art. Art students spend perhaps three times more hours on their classes than the credit hours indicate. Rethrowing ceramic pottery, doing many different studies of a single portrait, or spending a week to a month of research and development of a painting is time consuming work that the artists might do before presenting the completed piece for a grade.

After three and a half years of specialized courses in the different areas of art, plus all the general education requirements for graduation, the art students must take Senior Studio. In this course the students are required to do a survey paper, exhibit works of the previous two years and present an oral dissertation for the art faculty. The senior art shows are held in the Spiva Art Center gallery and are open to the public for viewing and the sale of selected works.

LIONS HAVE WINGS

In 1972 an editorial board consisting of English instructors Henry Harder, Joseph Lambert, Henry Morgan, Journalism instructor Eugene Murray, Art instructor Nathaniel Cole, and an editorial staff consisting of Steve Poore, Doyle Hall, and Gwen Garnett got together and formulated plans which led to the development of a creative arts magazine called THE WINGED LION. Joseph Lambert and Nathaniel Cole eventually became the magazine's long term advisors. Nathaniel Cole is still the current art advisor and was responsible for the creation of THE WINGED LION logo appearing in many of the issues. Rosemary Curb assumed the literary advisorship in the Fall 1978 semester after Joseph Lambert's resignation the previous semester. In the seven years the magazine has been in existence, it has gone through numerous literary and art editors, assistants, and readers. Likewise, it has consumed the poems, short stories, photographs, and art compositions of more than three hundred students. Moreover, THE WINGED LION welcomes contributions from any Missouri Southern State College student. Any genre of poetry, short story, essay, drama, novel, music, photography, or art will be accepted. Readers and assistants are also selected to aid in the judging of manuscripts and for practical experience in layout and production procedures. After the WINGED LION receives the literary submissions, they are assigned a number. Then all pertinent information (author's name, class level, and major) are recorded for future reference in the event they are selected for publication.

The editor, along with several readers, read and critically examine the manuscript four or five times, sometimes even more. The manuscript is graded on a scale from zero to five (zero being the lowest and five the highest). After this is done, they are then grouped according to grade (all the fives together, all the fours together, etc.). Then the editor makes the final selections. Usually the ones with the highest grades are accepted first. But not always. Depending on the number of submissions, a balance between the threes, fours, and fives is normally sought. Sometimes even a story or poem with a score of one or two is accepted first. All types and styles of poetry and short stories are accepted. Also, any length is accepted. The artwork is judged on composition, contrast between light and dark, media, and quality of production.

Since 1972, The Winged Lion has sought to present the best efforts of the students in literature, art, layout, and design. In the years ahead, the magazine will continue to serve as an outlet for student creativity.

—Charles Ross West

When a person displays his attempts at creativity to be scrutinized before the public eye, whether it be in art or literature, he is laying out a part of his inner self to be judged. And if someone were to honestly compliment a piece of work he has created, this compensates for a thousand false judgments.

On the occasion when one sees a piece of himself on paper, one becomes especially vulnerable to criticism. Only when he finds himself in such a situation does he become sympathetic with others under similar circumstances because of the emotion involved in having something so personal as inward feelings brought out before the reader. When, for example, I read one of my poems (or an artist views his creation) the full extent of my being somehow expressed in a few lines doesn't become real until I read my name . . . strange how formal things appear in print!

It is an extreme honor to be represented by such a medium as The Winged Lion. To know that it is highly probable that my work will never be published, I am especially proud and gratified when a person compliments the work I've put a part of myself into. Perhaps this is the only glory many writers will experience: the pleasure of having people care enough not only to read or view their creations, but to comment upon them.

—Janie Lindquist

SOUTHERN HOSTS...

Each year Missouri Southern plays host to area high school students and faculty in a variety of events, not only providing space for these activities but good public relations as well. The students get acquainted with the facilities and faculty of MSSC and are shown the advantages of coming here to school after their graduation.

Although most of the departments have activities for non-college persons, some have major events scheduled each year. 1978 was no exception.

Some of the invasions of our campus may have caused some grumbling and some crowing in the Union, but they were shortlived and sometimes they provided us with mini-vacations as classes were cancelled wherever the activities were held. One invasion, sponsored by the Modern Language Club, was the Foreign Language Field Day. Sixty to eighty MSSC students including the 25 members of the club aided Dr. Carney, Mr. Bodon, and Mr. Colon in administering skill tests to approximately 500 high school students. The club participates in the Field Day in addition to operating concession stands at soccer games, having rummage sales, and having an annual soccer tournament involving all foreign language classes.

Tri-Beta, the Biology club, and the Biology department sponsor the Biology League competition. Tests are created by the MSSC faculty and are college-level material. College students grade tests and supervise during the competition. Tri-Beta also has outside speakers on biology-related subjects and has an ice cream social during the fall.

Kappa Mu Epsilon, the Math League, sponsors test competition for the area high schoolers as well as having an awards picnic for all involved afterwards. KME also sponsors a campus-wide College Bowl in which all school organizations enter competition. Questions are chosen from a variety of topics.

The Speech department has the Forensics Tournament for two days each fall. Twenty-nine area schools participated in 1978 while over 315 MSSC students and 25 faculty members offered their assistance. Five hundred students competed in a variety of speaking situations.

Possibly the most active organization as far as inviting the high schools was CIRUNA. The social science oriented club sponsors three annual events on campus each year.

One event, the Model Security Council, provides students with the chance to become the United Nations for a day. Each high school is assigned a country to represent and they must research that nation and act according to its political beliefs. The History Conference is a simulation of an actual U.S. Senate session. A particular year is chosen, each school represents a certain state, and they attempt to think and act according to the time. The Social Science Symposium is similar to a college bowl with the schools separated into teams competing in questioning of all areas of social science. CIRUNA also participates in a National Model United Nations in St. Louis each February for six days. Missouri Southern, invaded now and then by busloads of gawking high schoolers, still survives. What would the clubs do without them?

Who wants to be a teacher? According to the MSSC Education Department, between 175 and 200 students are education majors this year.

After the first two years of general education with emphasis in their desired fields, education students must complete an application for admission into the education program. The junior and senior years consist of classes which train these students to be teachers. Courses in psychology and in methods of instruction comprise the major portion of upper division education requirements along with upper division hours in their teaching field.

As additional preparation for teaching students must take the Minnesota Multiple Personality Inventory, a speech and hearing examination, and be interviewed by several instructors here on campus. During the interview they discuss why they want to teach and where they would prefer to teach. The interview is a type of screening procedure to help insure that only competent and trained individuals enter the teaching profession.

One semester of the education major's senior year is spent in Block Course and Student Teaching. The eight weeks of Block Course give the students practical experience with various equipment, procedures and laws which affect teachers in the classroom.

After successfully fielding interviews questions, passing tests, and proving they can hear and speak, the education majors are sent to the proving grounds of different schools in the area. The experience of student teaching builds the self confidence of the students and they decide for certain that they truly do want to teach.

I WANT TO BE A TEACHER

PEOPLE and PIGEONS

by Laura Spaeth

How fast are your brain waves traveling or are they sluggish today? Will Pete repeat Repete's reaction to Crazy Mary? Is Bashful ready for his trip to the Headstart Box? These and other questions are being answered frequently in the Psychology Department laboratory. The lab, a new addition or rather improvement over former facilities, is run mainly by Dr. Allan Combs and the other psychology faculty.

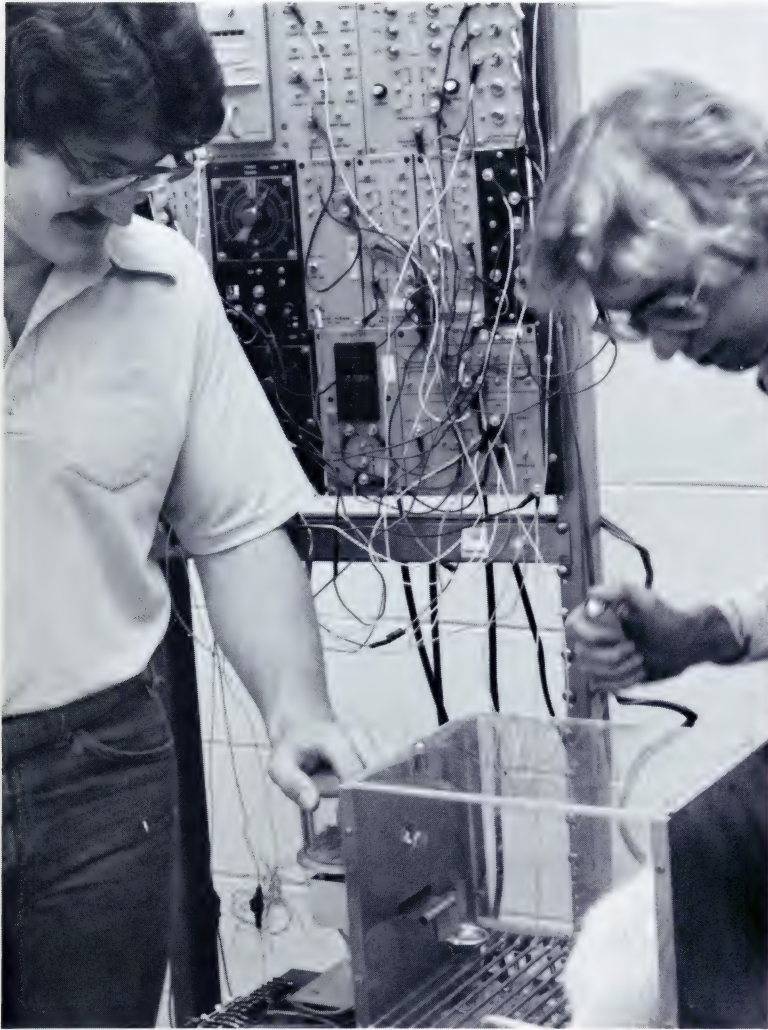

Students and staff perform various experiments upon white rats, pigeons, and general psychology students. The experiments, contrary to vivid imaginations, are basically concerned with operant conditioning, lateral eye movements, learning and memory, and biofeedback.

Psychology is a science and as such requires scientific experimentation. The students working in the lab enjoy the chance to experiment with the concepts they've learned in class. The students used as subjects are volunteers, and so far, nobody has complained about being a guinea pig.

The lab itself has a variety of spaces. One large room is used as a combination lounge and seminar room. Other rooms, comparable in size to a large closet, are designed so students can set up experiments and leave them set up for the duration of the project. Then there is the observation booth with a one-way glass window looking into a classroom. The faculty is hoping this window can be enlarged to increase its use. A sound system, like a bug-in-the-ear, is in the planning to enable the experimenter to communicate directions to the subject from the observation booth. One machine now in use can measure lateral dominance (which side of the brain is most active at the moment), brain wave speed, blood pressure, and heart rate.

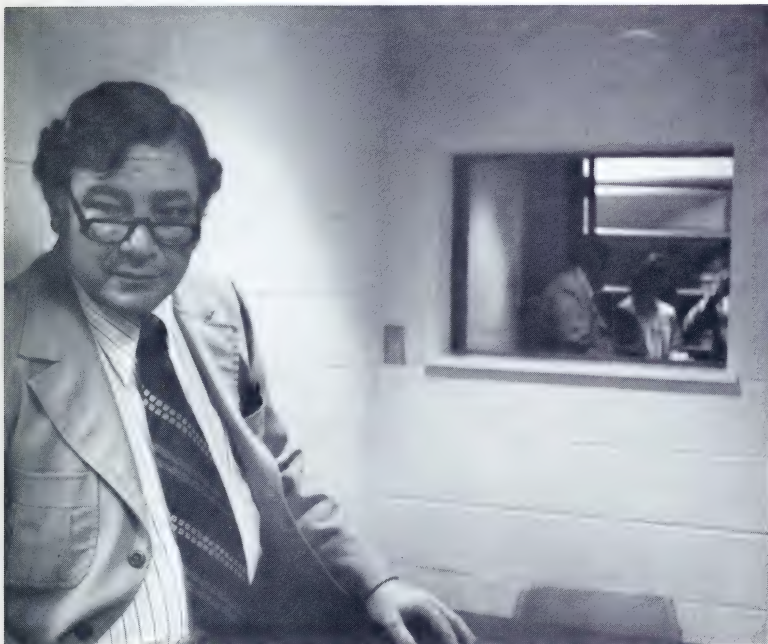

Dr. Merrell Junkins, pleased with the vast improvement over the old lab which was an old milk barn, would like to see more student use of the lab in the future. He feels that the chance to learn the basic principles of experimental methods really helps with psychology majors. With plenty of space to expand, Dr. Junkins and Dr. Sam Starkey would like to see more equipment for the facility. Unfortunately the machines have extremely expensive price tags, so they will be acquired slowly.

Presently there is one lab assistant, Richard Boyd, who is majoring in psychology. He helps set up experiments and tends to Pete, Repete, Crazy Mary, and the other pigeons, and Bashful and the other rats. The rats have a special cage called the Headstart Box, which gives them about twice the room of their regular cages. Each rat gets a turn to stretch his legs in the box for a few days.

Though the lab is mainly operated by the psychology department, other departments sometimes get in on the act. Dr. James Jackson, biology professor, is working with Dr. Combs on the neurology of sleep. Maybe too many biology students are falling asleep in class?!

A PROSPEROUS IMPOUNDMENT

The opportunity for an undergraduate to take part in an environmental impact study does not happen often, but just such an opportunity presented itself to our biology students. Missouri Southern biology department was asked by the Tulsa District Corps of Engineers to prepare an environmental profile of the Center Creek Basin for the proposed Prosperity Reservoir project. The faculty of the biology department recognized the value such a study could have for students who would be exposed to practical application of knowledge gained in the classroom.

A $20,000 grant was received from the Corps to finance the study, and a contract was accepted describing the study guideline. Biology instructor David Tillman was given the responsibility of administrative director and most of the other biology faculty along with Tillman conducted field research in their particular areas of expertise. A description of the study areas flora and fauna was required with the flora portion describing major plant communities and associated soil types. Also, unique, rare, or endangered species, communities, and habitats were studied and discussed. The fauna portion dealt with five major areas of study which included benthic invertebrates, fishes, amphibians and reptiles, birds and mammals.

The students taking part in the study functioned in the collecting, classifying and recording of samples as well as gathering data that may have already been recorded in previous research projects in the same area.

The study revealed the largest sycamore tree in the state of Missouri, growing in the Center Creek bottom. The picture at the left shows two students inside the hollow tree whose circumference is 26 feet, 6 inches.

Students also gathered climatological data and monitored aquatic conditions of the streams and creeks. About 180 days were allowed for completion of the study and during that time more than 25 students worked with the various faculty members.

The size of the proposed prosperity reservoir is approximately 10 miles long with 4 to 5 miles difference between shorelines, and the main function of the reservoir, which will be 60 feet at its deepest point, will be as a water supply and recreation area. The main purpose of the study was to help determine the environmental feasibility of the project. Only about 180 days were allowed for completion of the study and according to assistant professor, Dr. James Jackson, 180 days is not enough time to conduct an exhaustive study which is what would be required in order to determine whether the benefits of such a project outweigh the detriments. This opinion is also held by other members of the faculty. The study was able, however, to find one species of plants, and two species of animals that were on the Missouri list of rare and endangered species, but the three species were not on a federal rare and endangered species list so the Endangered Species Act does not affect continued work on the project. Ten students employed by the college to assist in the study included; David Fuller, Lisa Patten, Steve Short, Steve McGuire, Dana Tilton, Cynthia Campbell, Chris Demery, Bob Minkle, Linda Johnson, Marie Zagami.

The study was an excellent exercise in organization of research material and how it is presented in a professional report.

The close contact with instructors enhanced the learning process greatly and was a very valuable and enjoyable experience, especially on field research portions.

It provided summer jobs for the students enabling them to continue working in areas of interest. They got to know and appreciate their instructors more, and were exposed to things not taught in biology courses.

TALKING TO MACHINES

As today's society changes and grows, new fields, new horizons open up to advance us further. One field, thought to be fairly new in this technological age, is the area of computer science. The basics of this science, however, stretch back to a device known as an abacus—a simple set of beads strung on wires in a wooden frame first used around 3000 BC. The cards we are so familiar with during registration are direct descendents of cards used by a man in 1801 to control the path of the needle on his loom. The Harvard Mark I, ENIAC, and UNIVAC, all built between 1940 and 1952, were the first generation of computers. The computers we use today are the fourth generation. Want to talk in FORTRAN, COBOL, or just plain BASIC? Take Introduction to Programming, Advanced Programming, and some of the other computer courses offered at Missouri Southern.

One of the unique aspects of Southern's computer center is the fact that the students get hands-on-training. They get to work with the computers themselves. Other schools don't have students learn by trial and error—and error. Here they keypunch data onto cards, run programs, and learn the ins and outs of the computer and how it works. Students also work in the center in Kuhn Hall part-time, helping with enrollment and administrative work for Crowder College, five area high schools, and MSSC.

It's not easy to learn about the eccentricities of the IBM 370/115 Computer System or the IBM 1130 Computer. It takes a lot of patience, a lot of accuracy, and a lot of time. Mistakes often overpower you, especially the ones that remain hidden while your exasperation grows. But when that program you've fussed, sweated, and almost lost your religion over, finally works, you feel as if you've seen the light at the end of the tunnel. "That tunnel gets bigger" though, according to Mr. Calicott, one of the instructors. Starting out in programming, for instance, you are accosted by a vast amount of new and often confusing material. But, if you continue diligently long enough, you will obtain one of the most marketable skills available today.

A degree in computer science keeps you apace with modern technology. Opportunity knocks at your door, not vice versa. One major bank in the eastern U.S. recently advertised for good computer programmers and actually paid finder's rewards to employees who found people for the jobs.

These wanted skills can be achieved right here at MSSC because, as Mr. Gray, director of the center said, "The computer center belongs to the students. It is theirs to use." They can ask questions and get the answers. James Gray, Willis Calicott, John Cragin, and Robert Mammen run the center in an informal manner. Students don't stay stuck in a chair all the time. Of course, there are lectures, and often much outside work, but there is also a fair amount of freedom working during the labs. It all equals out to give the best training in a computer center highly acclaimed throughout the state.

SKILLS, EXCITEMENT, and MONEY!

If you want to earn a little cash while in school, and don't mind spending the two years after you graduate in the army or the Army reserves, ROTC may be for you.

The Military Science Department directs and administers the Army Reserve Officers Training Corps by joint agreement between MSSC and the US Army.

The Military Science Department offers two sets of courses to students, the Basic courses and the Advanced ROTC program. As Captain Thomas said in class, "The purpose of the ROTC program is to get college into the army."

The Basic courses are open to all students with no obligations, uniforms, haircuts, or any other requirements. Four of the courses emphasize basic skills that can be useful to anyone who likes camping, backpacking, canoeing, mountaineering, or hunting. Specific activities of the different courses include rappelling, marksmanship, map reading, orienteering, survival training, backpacking, canoeing, camping skills, and military job opportunities. All these activities are designed to build self confidence in the individual student.

Grades in the Basic Courses are based on attendance and improvement of skills.

In the Advanced ROTC classes the Army gets into the fun. Classes emphasize leadership training, methods of instruction, communications and weapons systems, and tactics of military offense and defense. Advanced program students receive $100 a month subsistence pay during the school year, and $450 plus room, board and uniforms during summer camp.

ROTC summer camp is held in Fort Riley, Kansas. Here students join 2,600 cadets from 89 colleges and universities in competitive training. In 1978 MSSC placed sixth in the competition, beating schools such as Notre Dame Purdue, MU, and KSU. During the six weeks of camp students are placed in platoons of forty cadets, exchanging leadership positions and alternately playing the roles of commanding officers and subordinates. Students receive training in communications, artillery, armoured tank tactics, howitzers, machine guns, and chemical warfare.

In addition to summer camps, there are several voluntary programs for students who enjoy a little more excitement than tanks and machine guns provide. Air Assault School is held over Christmas break at Fort Campbell for students interested in helicopter warfare. The fun includes rappelling from helicopters and learning assault tactics. Airborne School is held in May. Two or three MSSC cadets usually attend to learn parachuting techniques from towers and airplanes. For those who like on-the-job experience there is Army Orientation Training. Students with junior standing can serve on an army installation as a Junior Lieutenant officer.

After graduation, students who have completed the ROTC program are commissioned Second Lieutenants in the US Army or Army Reserves and will serve a minimum of two years with the base salary at over $11,000 a year for a single student. Those two years could be a challenging investment.

SPRING FLING '78

The Campus at MSSC showed its first signs of life after the long, cold winter of '78 when the College Union Board and Student Senate sponsored the annual "Spring Fling" in conjunction with Greek Week April 24-28. Students and faculty alike got into the action in many ways throughout Freebie Week, and all the events were well received.

There was a variety of entertainment including Gil Eagles, a hypnotist; Vassar Clements, famous fiddler; a coffee house performance by Bill Haymes, a folk singer-guitarist; and John Biggs, a bluegrass guitarist.

"Spring Fling" climaxed on Friday with Freebie Day. Even the weather co-operated, permitting free hot dogs and ice cream to be served to the student body out-of-doors. While some enjoyed frisbee-throwing or watching the faculty jogging race, the Greeks got into the act by sponsoring various activities. Lambda Beta Phi sponsored a pie-throwing booth while Kappa Alpha and Sigma Nu kept the old fraternity rivalry going by competing against each other in a tug-of-war.

GRADUATION

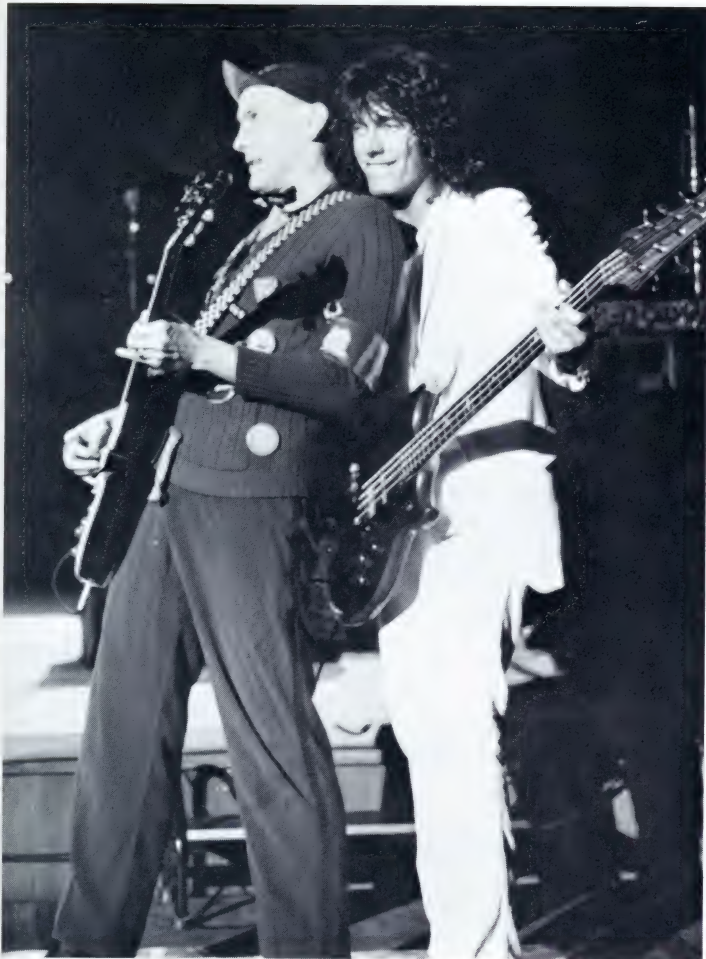

The 1978 Commencement ceremonies were held on May 19 in Fred G. Hughes Stadium for the college's 10th graduating class. A record 560 students received their diplomas.

CARLOS MONTOYA

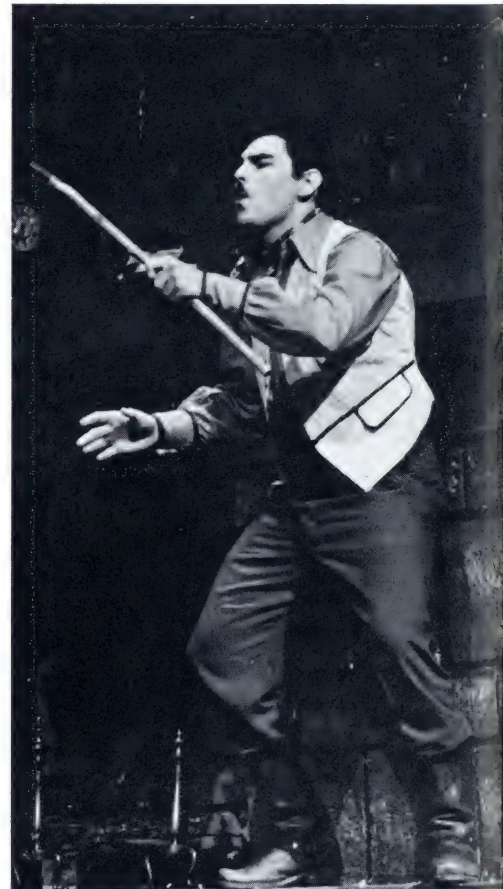

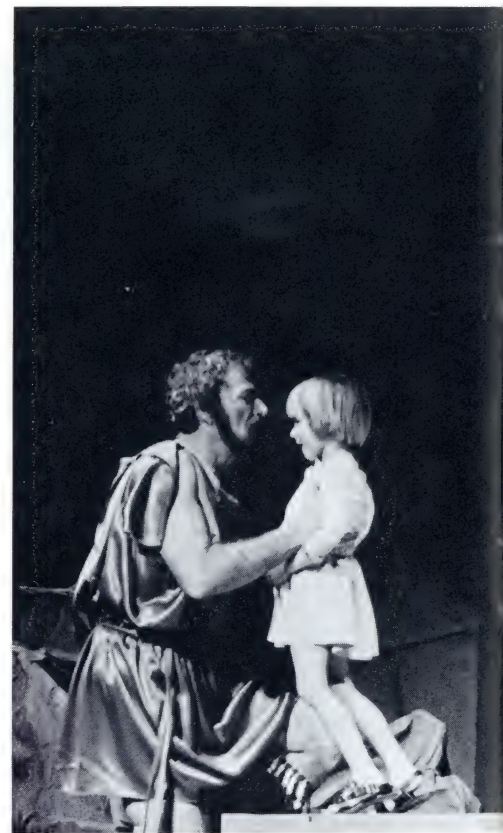

Carlos Montoya, world famous Flamenco guitarist, played to a full house in Taylor Auditorium, October 4. A Spanish Gypsy, Montoya is the most recorded Flamenco artist in history and has become the living symbol of Flamenco music the world over. With an infinitely varied repertoire, Montoya kept the audience spellbound for two one-hour segments of incomparable guitar music.

CHEAP TRICK

The MSSC College Union Board sponsored a concert by Cheap Trick on October 12 in Taylor Auditorium. The start of the performance was delayed forty-five minutes due to sound checking by the band, but Cheap Trick performed two encores for the applauding fans at the end of the show. Lead guitarist Rick Nielson played to the crowd, giving the thumbs up signal and throwing guitar picks into the audience, while the drummer Bun E. Carlos faded into a haze of cigarette smoke.

THE RAINMAKER

The last play of the 1977-78 season was THE RAINMAKER by N. Richard Nash. Milton Brietzke directed the comedy-drama which told of the struggles of the Curry family to save their farm from the drought and get their spinsterish daughter Lizzie married.

The cast for the show was: Christi Hager, Lizzie; Henry Heckert, H.D. Curry; Mark Harris, Noah; Bert Fleeman, Jim; David Denefrio, The Rainmaker, Bill Starbuck; Dan Butler, Sheriff Thomas; and Scott Lorenz, Deputy File.

MEDEA

In 431 B.C. Greek playwright Euripides won third prize for his tragedy MEDEA in the annual drama festival of Athens. MEDEA was a classic struggle of individual will and illuminated the condition of women in a men's world. Mrs. Trij Brietzke directed American poet Robinson Jeffers' adaptation of this ancient classic of great love driven to hate and revenge for MSSC's spring 1978 production. Cast for the show included: Bonnie Christeson, the nurse; Gwen Hunt, Jenny Blaylock, and Jill Duncan as the women of Corinth; Missy Patchin, Medea; R.D. Lippincott, Creon; Henry Heckert, Jason; Dr. Robert Price, Aegeus; Raymond Lee, the tutor; Joel Patterson, Jason's slave; Nelda Lux and Lisa Howerton as attendants to Medea; Kevin Howard, Geoffrey Mann, Phil Oglesby, and James Perry as soldiers; and Grant Shepherd and Zane Finton as the children of Medea. Carole Mell composed original music for the production. Set design was by Mark Harris, lighting by John Early. Properties were by Phil Oglesby and costumes by Scott Martin.

GLASS MENAGERIE

The 78/79 season of the Fine Arts Theatre opened with Tennessee Williams haunting memory play of family love and conflict directed by Milton Brietzke. The character of Tom Wingfield (Raymond Lee) took all of us back into the past, along the corridors of his mind. We saw again the Saint Louis of 1935. In the cramped and fading apartment of Tom's memory we met four very important people in his life: his mother, Amanda (Jenny Blaylock), the faded bell of the southern ball struggling to keep the home and family together; Laura (Kelly Spence), the shy, impeded sister whose hold on sanity is the crystal menagerie of glass animals she tends so carefully; Jim O'Connor (Mike Williams), the glib ambitious gentleman caller; Tom's father, long since abandoning the family, but whose shadowy presence influences all.

Shakespeare's great tragedy of a man corrupted by ambition was directed by Trij Brietzke for December's production. Henry Heckert in the title role was nominated for the Irene Ryan Acting Excellence award in Region 6 of the American College Theatre Festival.

MACBETH

The Rude Mechanicals by Ed Braczyk was presented to over 5100 Joplin and Carthage schoolchildren and the public in March of 1978 in Taylor Performing Arts Center. Cast members for the zany comedy adapted from Shakespeare were: Christi Hager, Puck; Dan Weaver, Peter Quince the carpenter; Rick Medlin, Snug, a joiner; Chris Larson, Nick Bottom the weaver; Dwight Cannon, Flute the bellows maker; John Early, Starveling the tailor; Shawn Boan, Snout the tinker; Mike Williams, Theseus, the Duke of Athens; Rita Henry, Hippoplyta, a maiden; Linda Gordon, Miss Property.

THE RUDE MECHANICALS

ANDROCLES and the LION

The MSSC Theatre Fall 1978 children's show was the musical play ANDROCLES AND THE LION by Aurand Harris with music by Glenn Mack. The cast included: John Early, Androcles; Kathy Lay, the Lion; Greg Hill, Pantelone; Shawn DeGraff, the Captain; Jannell Robinson, Isabella; Mark Harris, Lelio; Karla Taylor, Initiare; Jamie Johnson, The Wall; Lance Ipock, Emperor Claugustus. Duane Hunt directed the show and Colleen Pettit was the musician for the performances staged in cooperation with the Joplin Branch of the Association for Childhood Education.

ISSUES

The college campus is not just an ivory tower, but a place where students have an opportunity to learn about the issues of the day and better prepare themselves to confront them after graduation. Noted journalist and political activist Julian Bond (below) lectured on the continuing movement of the black Americans to attain full participation in this society. "We are changing the color of Southern politics," he said. "If enough Blacks are elected at the grass roots, it's bound to have a major impact on politics at the top."

Jean Kilbourne (right below) brought a stimulating slide presentation of her research into the "Cultural Conditioning of Women through Advertising." "It isn't just that we're portrayed negatively," she says, "it's that every area of our lives is affected and our self-images are devastated."

In December as the political unrest in Iran reached the boiling point, Iranian student Ahmad Asadi (facing page) attempted to arouse a campus demonstration against the United States government's continuing support of the Shah. Many professionally produced posters were in evidence on campus, but the protest march was sparsely attended.

In January the Shah's government toppled, but the new ruler, Ayatollah Khomeini, returned to Iran from his self-imposed exile to face near anarchy. That country's unrest would most certainly affect the Southern campus and especially the commuter students if, as predicted, the cut-off of Iranian oil forced gasoline prices to a dollar a gallon.

Southern COFFEEHOUSE

The College Union Board made good use of the students' activity fees by sponsoring a series of coffeehouse performances by different artists this year. The music varied from folk, to blues, to bluegrass, to country, to plain old corn. In the red-checkered candle lit atmosphere a lot of gingerbread and pretzels were eaten while the audience laughed, clapped and sang along with John Biggs, Arne Brau, Jack Ross, Dave Rudolf, and Allen Ross. Despite being rained out 24 times during the season and claiming only a 15-14 regular season record, Coach Warren Turner's Lions battled their way through post season play to second place in the NAIA Baseball World Series. Seeded fourth of four teams at the District 16 playoffs in Springfield, MSSC wasn't given much of a winning chance, but with three straight victories the Lions won the District championship. At Oshkosh, Wisconsin, they breezed past Winona State twice and the University of Wisconsin-La Crosse to grab the Area 4 title. Coach Turner commented "since tournament competition began . . . everything has been outstanding." All-District players were: second baseman, Greg Curran; centerfielder Red O'Dell; catcher, Mike Allen; and pitcher Barry Jenkins. O'Dell and Jenkins were also named to the all-tournament team.

LION TEAM TO NAIA

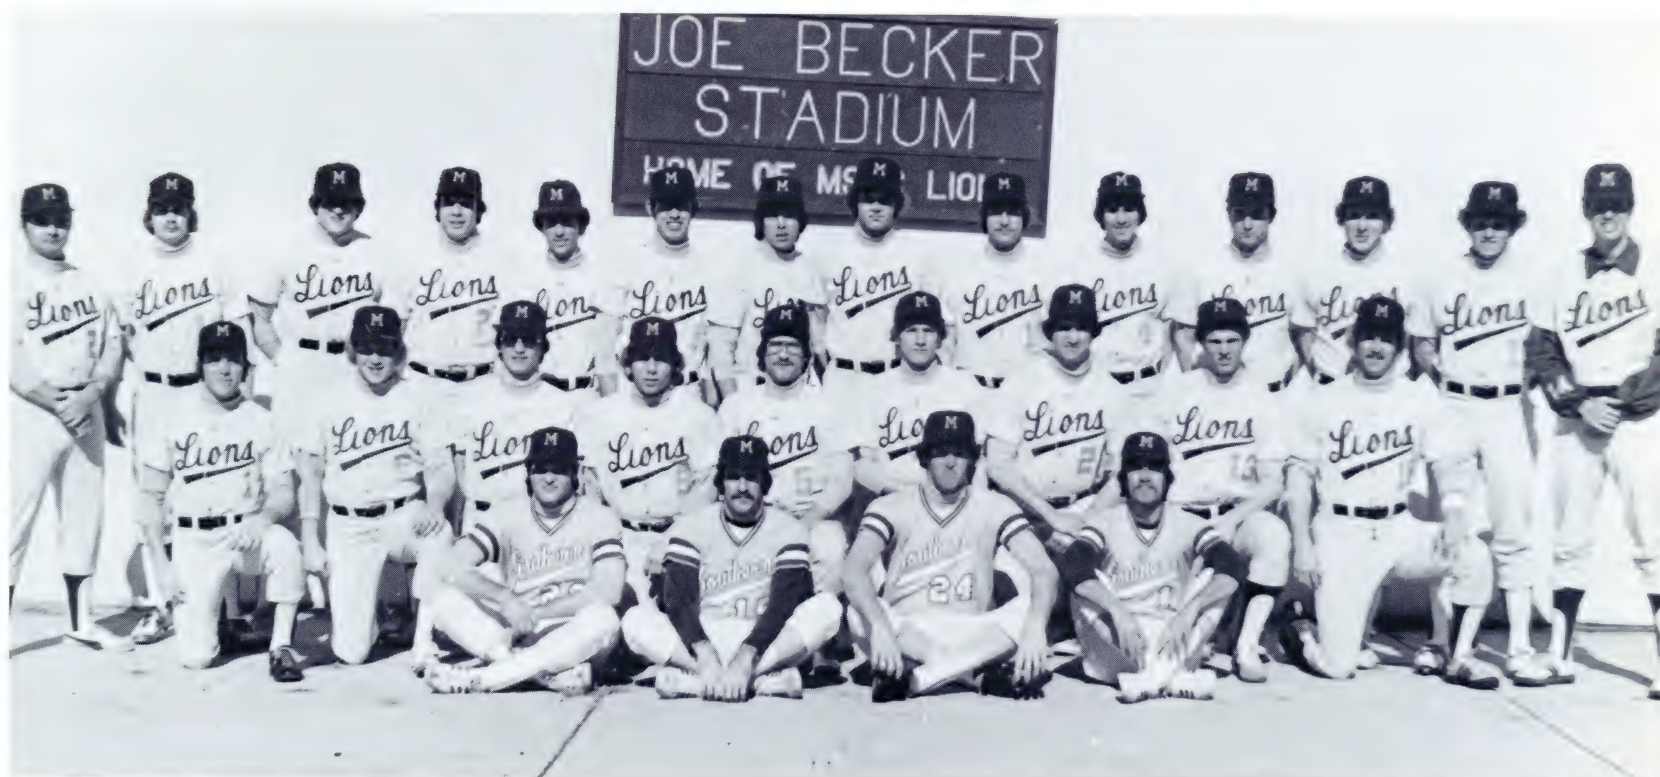

Then it was on the the World Series in St. Joseph, Missouri as the long shot contender with a 21-14 record. The Lions had not really sparked until playoffs, but then they exploded with 10 homeruns in the six games. Batting averages improved and spirit was high. After defeating Lewis-Clark State College in the series semi-finals and advancing to the winner's bracket finals, Roger Dreier, shortstop, commented about the lack of belief in MSSC as a winner. "Nobody's giving us much of a chance. I guess we're just going to have to show 'em that we also play pretty good baseball in Missouri." And show them they did! The "miracle" Lions continued to win right up to the end. Only CSIC foe Emporia State slowed them down. First a no-hitter in the semi-finals then the Hornets exploded offensively to outlast the Lions to an 8-6 final score in the championship final. Coach Turner was disappointed not to bring the national championship back to MSSC and Joplin but as he said, "It doesn't feel too bad to be No. 2 when you consider there are over 400 schools playing NAIA baseball." Three players were named to the all-tournament team: Barry Jenkins, Mike Allen and Randy Cable. Team voted senior second baseman Greg Curran as their most valuable player of 1978. Coach Turner was voted NAIA Coach of the Year.

SOCCER '78

The 1978 Soccer team, coached by Hal Bodon, succeeded in completing their fifth straight winning season last year. The highlight of the year was the Lions' victory in the 1st annual Lion-backer's Soccer Tournament October 6 and 7 defeating Lindenwood, Ottawa, and Oral Roberts. Led by All-district players Cary Maloney and Rick Ruzicka, the Lions rolled to a 12-6-1 season record. With the help of Most Valuable Offensive Player Rick Ruzicka, the team kicked in a total of 54 goals; while Most Valuable Defensive Players Ron Behnen and Cary Maloney as well as the rest of the defense held their opponents to 20 goals. George Major, Bon Behnen, and Todd Johnston, received Honorable Mention for District 16 play. The team also awarded the following: Most Inspirational Player: (for the second year) Todd Johnston; Rookie of the Year: Joe Macken. Best Sportsmanship: Cary Maloney. Maloney was also named Most Outstanding Senior by KQYX-KSYN Radio Stations.

VOLLEY- BALL

The 1978 Lady Lion Spikers finished their season with a 15-14 overall record. The Southern team finished sixth in CSIC conference standings, and had a 5-3 district record. The junior varsity finished the season with a 4-2 record.

Barb Lawson led the team in individual statistics. She had 285 points served, 299 offensive points, and averaged 2.7 points per game. Mary Carter followed in points served with 243, and Leah Williams had 229. Carter's average points served per game was 2.1 and Williams had an average of 2.0. For most ace serves, Leah Williams led the team with 61. Carter had 40 aces and Lawson had 39. Patti Killian led the team statistics for most blocked points with 98; Williams had 97; and Lawson had 62. Lawson again heads the list of most offensive points with 299. Williams and Killian follow with 279 and 247. Kathy Radmer had the most assists for the Lady Lions with 400 while Lindy Binns followed with 231. Radmer scored a total of 728 points for the team, Lawson had 681, and Williams totalled 620 points.

BASKETBALL

Spring 1978 found the Basketball Lions finishing a 27-9 season in spectacular style by winning the CSIC Championship, the District 16 crown, and then going to Kansas City for the NAIA Tournament. Coach Chuck Williams' team made it to the quarterfinals before being stopped by the Hawks of Quincy College of Illinois. Williams was named CSIC Coach of the Year in his first year as head cage coach at MSSC, while Russell Bland received the Player of the Year Award. Bland beat out teammate Roland Martin by one vote. NAIA Honorable Mention included Maurice Dixon, Shelvy Brown, Scott Schulte, and Bob Corn. All-CSIC team members were Bland and Martin with Honorable Mention going again to Dixon, Brown, Schulte, and Corn.

By contrast, the 1979 season looked dismal with seven of the eleven 1978 squad members completing their eligibility. Returning were Bill Brewster, Scott Schulte, and Shelvy Brown. Three new players eligible for this season were Phil Close, Johnny Parker, and Sam Starkey.

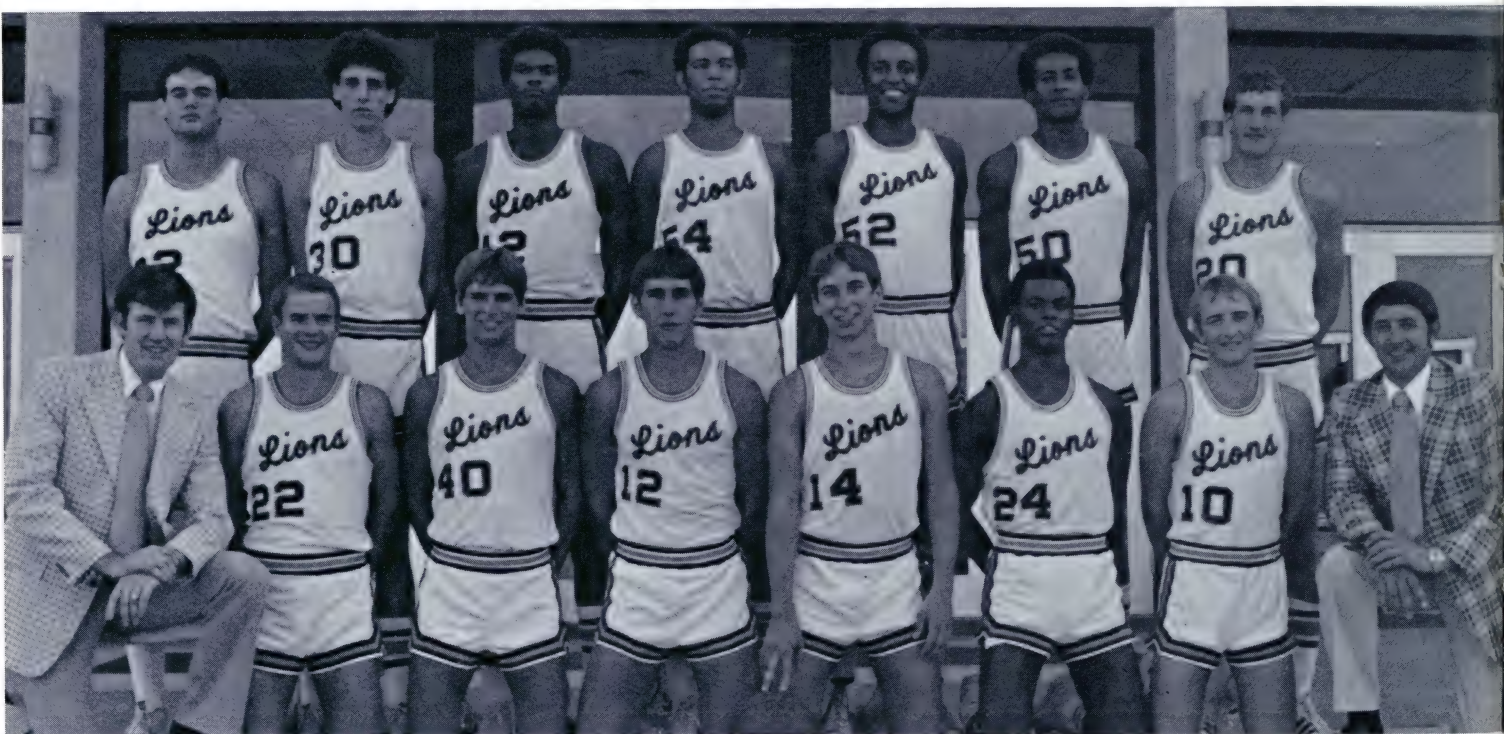

Leading scorers for the Lions in '79 have been Close with 396 points, followed by Brown with 296, and Brewster with 231. Although hampered by inconsistency, the Lions have still managed an average of 69.4 points per game, while their opponents have averaged 71 points.

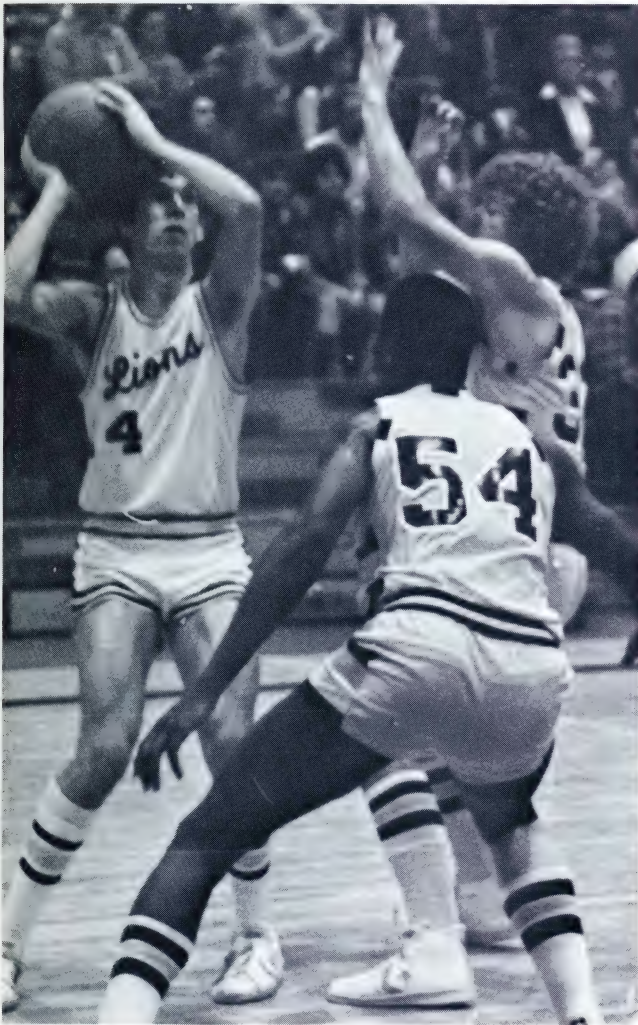

As of February 12, the team had a record of 8-15. But, let's face it, after the spectacular 1978 season, and the loss of seven very good players, determination, hard work, and a lot of luck would be needed to top a 27-9 record. Keep trying, hoopers!

MSSC began a new Homecoming tradition this year by hosting a buffet luncheon for all alumni. Almost 400 former students, spouses and friends gathered before the Homecoming game for reunion fellowship. Regent Fred Hughes and his wife Becky (below) and many other faculty and board members also attended. Jack Dawson ('72) received the Outstanding Alumnus Award from Association President Glen Barnett. (far left) A practicing artist and teacher at Webb City High School, Jack has created the Praying Hands and Kneeling Miner statues and a large mural for Webb City. He has also been featured in "Missouri Life" and in Missouri artists exhibits.

CROSSROADS PHOTOGRAPHY CONTEST

1st prize, $25— Lindy Binns, "snow scene"

2nd prize, $15— Kerwin Kollmeier, "bricks"

3rd prize, $10— Lindy Binns, "leaving for class after first snow"

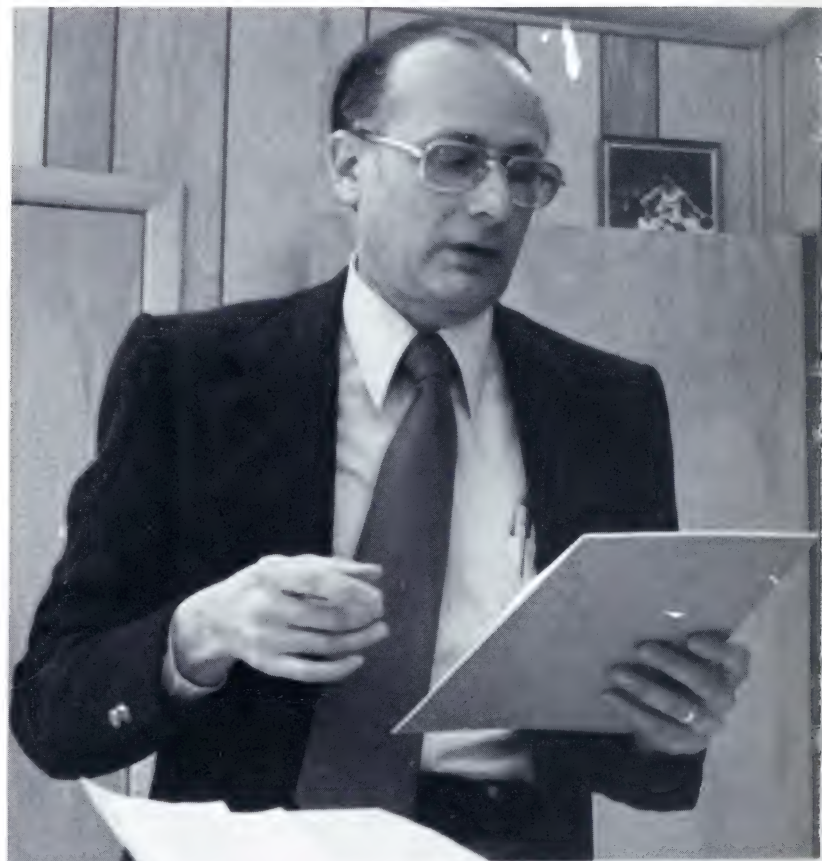

Honorable Mention—Kerwin Kollmeier, "milkweed" and "reflection"

The contest was open to all students and faculty with categories of student life, nature, and special or experimental photographs. The photos were judged on composition, content, and quality of prints.

The Chart was the most widely read publication on campus this year. The Acquisition of a Compugraphic typesetter aided the staff lead by Clark Swanson, Editor in Chief, and Richard Massa, Advisor, in producing a weekly newspaper. The Chart was honored for it's sixth straight semester as an All American College Newspaper in the fall of 1978.

CROSSROADS 1979 STAFF

A versatile layout style (there was none), the Points of Interest feature section, the Photography Contest, a different approach to the organization and student life Intersections section, and the minifeatures in the Population section were all new to Crossroads. All comments about this book and suggestions for next year's Crossroads are appreciated.

CHERRIE—CLOSEUP

Cherrie Dickerman, sponsored by South Hall, was the 1978 MSSC Homecoming Queen. Cherrie was a cheerleader, president of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and Staff Assistant for South Hall.

Originally from the St. Louis area, Cherrie now lives in Florida where she enjoys swimming and scuba diving. Cherrie won an award for saving a person's life with mouth to mouth resuscitation. Cherrie also enjoys volleyball and now coaches it since she is no longer able to play because of an accident. She also loves sewing and playing tennis.

Cherrie plans to teach P.E. and counsel on the High School level. She enjoys going to MSSC and has found it a much friendlier campus than most. As for being Homecoming Queen, Cherrie said "The girls really backed me up, they are all really sweet people."

WAGE INCREASE DECREASES JOBS AVAILABLE

As we struggled through our studies to attain that seemingly elusive diploma, many students were also chasing after elusive jobs. One obstacle they faced was the constant increase of the minimum wage. While the increase may have been good for those already employed, it had detrimental effects on the teens and college students seeking jobs. Without skills it became difficult to find jobs other than in fast food restaurants or clerking. But without a job it was hard to get skills. The vicious circle continued to grow. The increase also cut down on part-time hiring.

One area banker conceded that the increase practically prohibits his hiring of unskilled, inexperienced people with or without college degrees. The cost of training is not worth the return he would get from the person. He said the minimum wage increase is "the worst thing to happen to young people, including the college graduates."

ON BASE

College is a meeting place for people of different backgrounds aiming for different futures. Many students here came from military backgrounds. These students added a unique dimension to our campus with their insights into cultures other than ours.

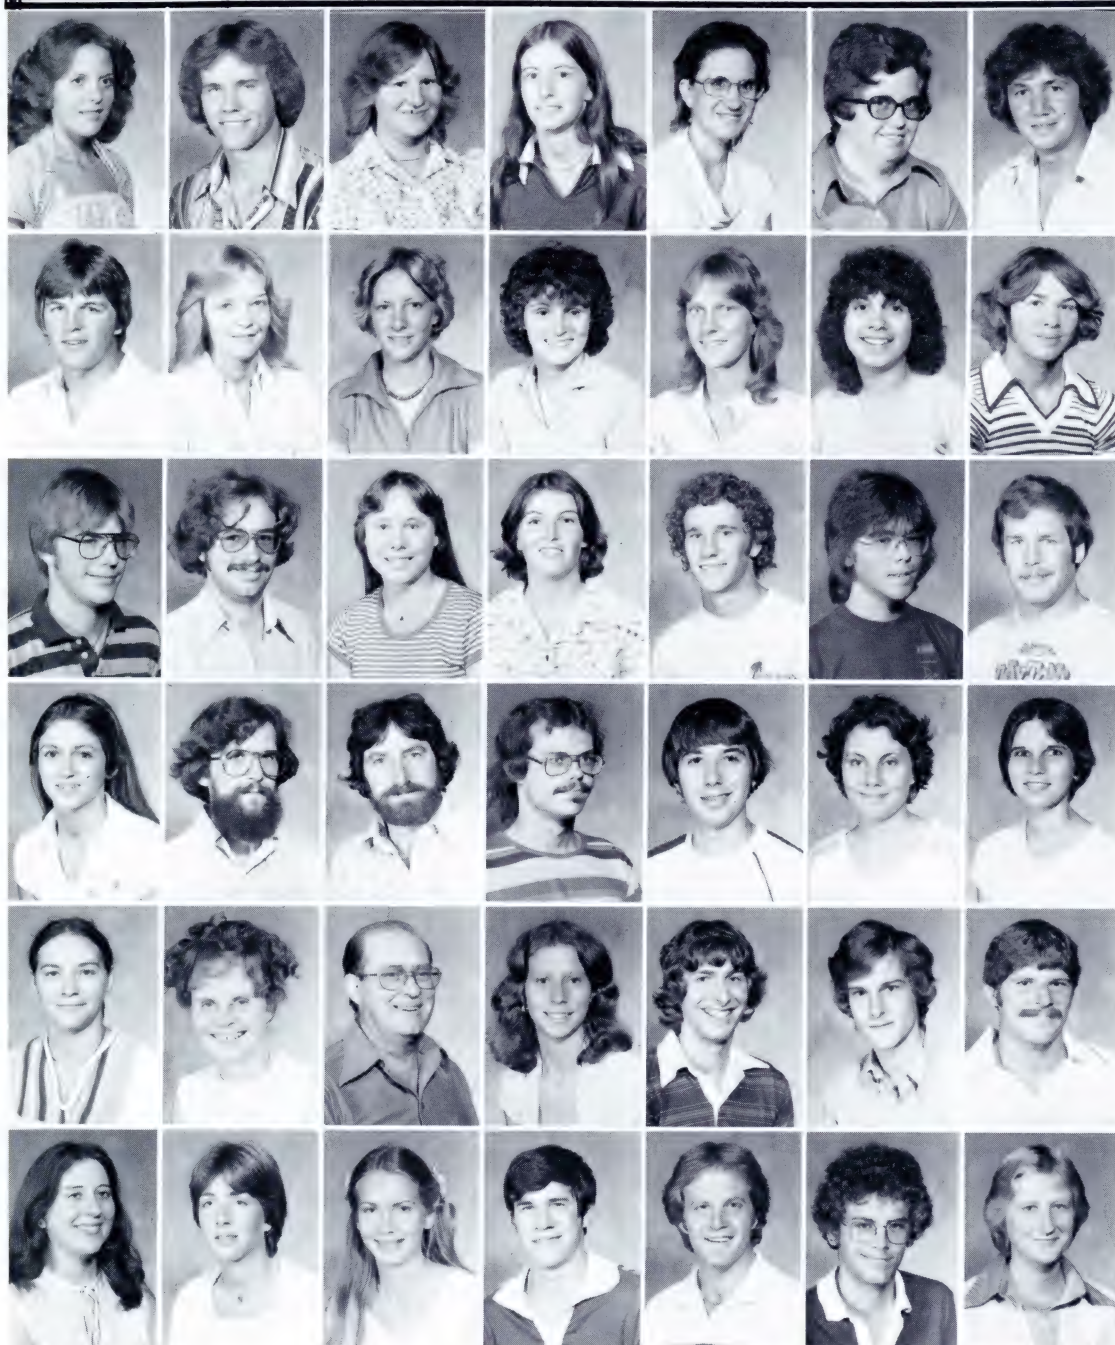

Danette Banks, second in the Homecoming Queen contest, was born in France. Her father is a Colonel in the U.S. Air Force. Danette found the moving to be an educational asset as she lived in cultures from Taiwan to Arkansas, from the Philippines to Delaware, from North Carolina to Missouri.

Although Jerry Walker was born in Morocco and later moved to San Diego, his father being in the Navy failed to affect him much because he was too young to remember.

Brenda Henson, whose father was in the Army, loved the moving around as she traveled from Germany to Japan to Florida to California to Missouri. She found making friends became easier even though the friendships were inevitably short-lived.

Besides these three and many other "military brats" there are many ex-military men and women on campus. All of them remind us that we gather in a melting pot of unique individuals here at Missouri Southern.

ROPES AND .22S

Swinging down a thirty-foot tower may seem easy to some people, but to the uninitiated, the first time can be a little scary. On October 12 and 13 the Military Science Department offered a rappelling and shooting clinic for brave and interested students as part of Homecoming week and also to promote interest in the department. After the "Help, I'm going to fall" feeling passed most of the students enjoyed the experience.

About half the students attending the shooting clinic had never used a firearm before and most were pleasantly surprised at how well they did. Each student fired 15 rounds with a .22 caliber rifle, then walked down the 50-foot range to retrieve the target. The most unnerving moment to a more experienced marksman was "turning around after taking the target off the board and seeing all those kids pointing guns at me!"

SENIOR INVASION

Several times throughout the year high school students seemed to be invading Southern's campus. Different campus organizations sponsored these visits for special activities related to the purpose of the organization. The Student Senate sponsored Senior Day during Homecoming week. Kathy Lay was chairman of the event and 40 MSSC students served as tourguides. They hosted over 700 area high school seniors during the event. Senior Day provided an opportunity for the students to see the campus and become acquainted with the academic programs, physical facilities, and extracurricular activities available at Missouri Southern.

THE LONG WAY AROUND

It was a cold windy day when the fence appeared. Why? Was a question many dorm students asked. The issue at hand was the placement of a safe crosswalk across Newman Road. The original crosswalk was placed too far east for dorm students to consider using it. To go to and from the cafeteria, it was out of the question. So students crossed the road in other places. Result: the fence was erected to channel students to the crosswalk. Angry about the fence, students tore it down three times and finally confronted Dr. Billingsly about the issue. Unfortunately neither the city nor the college has jurisdiction over traffic control on it. At presstime, no permanent solution had been found, but an opening was made in the fence through which students could cross Newman road—at their own risk.

DEADLINE EXTENDED.

In early October of 1978 the United States Congress voted to extend the deadline for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment another three years. The MSSC chapter of the Association of Women Students invited Guylinn Pearman to speak on the subject. Pearman, president of the Joplin Chapter of the National Organization for Women testified at the U.S. Senate committee hearing and attended the floor debate before the vote to extend the ratification deadline. At the A.W.S. meeting Pearman discussed the positive and negative affects of the ERA. The main point of the amendment states: "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or any state on account of sex." Missouri is one of the states that has not passed this amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

FRANCISCO COLON 1921-1979

Senor Colon, one of MSSC's most dedicated teachers, died February 12 after returning from Houston, Texas, the week before. He had just undergone his third heart operation. Colon, who taught for 15 years at Joplin High School, came to Missouri Southern in 1968 as assistant professor of Spanish. His enthusiasm for his subject and his meticulous preparation for his classes made Spanish come alive for his students.

IN MEMORY: DON RODERIQUE 1932-1978

Don Roderique, appointed as a Regent of Missouri Southern State College, in August 1977, died April 1978 of a heart attack. He had been tapped by Governor Teasdale for a six-year term on the Board. An insurance agent in Webb City, he actively participated in organizational and political activities throughout his life. And as a Regent he was extremely interested in all aspects of the college community.

Mr. Roderique, a life-long resident of the Webb City area, received his Bachelor of Arts degree in Philosophy from Kenrick Seminary in St. Louis. With his wife Jannell he returned to Webb City where his father operated Roderique Insurance Agency.

Maintaining a lively interest in politics, Mr. Roderique served in the State House of Representatives from 1959 to 1962 and was appointed to finish a term in 1976. He also served for several years as Chairman of the Jasper County Democratic Party. It was through his efforts that Governor Joseph Teasdale visited Joplin and held a public forum at MSSC.

In his other activities, he served on the Boards of Directors of the Webb City Boys Club, the Webb City Welfare Board and Elmhurst Rest Home. When his father died Don Roderique took over the insurance agency and became a member of the Missouri Independent Insurance Agents Association. His son Jim, the oldest of eight children, is now a part of the family agency.

Don Roderique was a dynamic, enthusiastic man who cared enough to try to improve things. Caring was more than a word to him; it was a part of him.

Glenn Wilson of Joplin is the newest member of the Board of Regents. He was appointed by Governor Teasdale in August 1978 to succeed Don Roderique, and will serve the remainder of the term until 1983. An alumnus of Joplin Junior College, Mr. Wilson is manager of personnel and industrial security for Teledyne Corporation in Neosho. He is a graduate of the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and is a colonel in the Army Reserve.

Seated: Dr. Floyd Belk, Dean of Academic Affairs; Lorine Miner, Director of Placement; Gwen Hunt, Director of Public Information; Dr. David Bingman, Director of Evening Division Standing: George Volmert, Registrar; Dr. Paul Shipman, Vice-President for Business Affairs; Richard Humphrey, Director of Admissions; Sidney Shouse, Controller

Dr. Floyd Belk was named by the Board of Regents to serve as Interim President following the death of Dr. Billingsly. While retaining his duties as Academic Dean, he would serve until a new president was named. A search and screening committee was selected to study applications and present a final list of candidates to the Board. July 1, 1979, was the target date for the arrival of a new president for MSSC.
